A Queens College graduate, Anthony Perrone earned his CPA in 1982. He began his career working at an accounting firm in midtown Manhattan that specialized in serving the garment industry. In 1983, he joined the Long Island accounting firm of Rose & Haar CPAs, later he spent five years as Controller at a major construction company and in 1993 he went on to form the partnership of Perlman, Schleifer & Perrone, CPAs with offices in North Babylon. Perrone joined DSJCPA as partner in 2017 and assists individuals and businesses in the construction trade and co-ops (he is a member of the Common Interest Realty Association-CIRA). He also provides accounting services for numerous medical professionals.

What he likes most about accounting is helping people who may not have the wherewithal to get into business to form successful businesses. "It's a way of changing lives," Perrone says.

Anthony serves on the Board of Directors of several not-for-profits involved in medical research. He's also a professional referee accredited in the field of soccer.
